

Sea and Sage Audubon presents

Grand Opening of our Pollinators' Garden

at the San Joaquin Wildlife Sanctuary in Irvine

Did you know that animal pollinators are responsible for one third of everything we eat, yet native bee populations are declining? We can help increase their numbers by planting Southern California native plants that benefit native bees and hummingbirds!

In cooperation with the Irvine Ranch Water District, Sea and Sage Audubon's education staff have created a large demonstration garden to show you which local plants attract pollinators while being drought-tolerant and looking beautiful.

Join the fun during our grand opening

Saturday, June 11, 2016
10 AM – Noon

We will have a ribbon-cutting at 10 AM, walks through the garden with Trude Hurd and Deborah Brin, displays about hummingbirds and native bees, fun activities for children, and light refreshments. It's all free.

Please RSVP your attendance at seaandsage@sbcglobal.net

For information, see our website at www.seaandsageaudubon.org or contact Project Director Trude Hurd at seaandsage@sbcglobal.net.